

Making in the Bunker

above/below

scrap blanket, various fibers

"I really became the community
"knitter" or "mender" or "seamstress" or whatever by accident. It started, like most things do, with a baby.

- journal of k.d., april 19th, 2032 @ 2:14pm

memory box, cigar box and recovered tiles

"The cleaning of my world has always been about putting things in order, but the cleaning of the natural world is allowing things to break out of that order."

- journal of k.d., april 26th, 2032 @ 1:04am

sewing kit, altoid tin and recovered sewing supplies

"There's something peaceful about making and mending. The yarn transforms from one lonely string into something that holds weight."

- journal of k.d., april 19th, 2032 @ 2:14pm

checkers board, basswood and paint

"Children build identity through place
- and right now, 'place' is shifting from open to enclosed. We have to make that transformation poetic, not traumatic."

- the evergreen journal, april 21st, 2031

above/below blanket, bamboo and cotton yarns

"I know the land around us. I know it's voice, it's gait, it's laugh. But something is different.

We are topside. We are topside. We are topside."

- journal of k.d., april 25th, 2032 @ 7:54pm

dominos, basswood

"K - (STOP) -

I AM SO BORED RIGHT NOW - (STOP)
- I DO NOT THINK I DOWNLOADED ENOUGH CONTENT ON MY PHONE - (STOP) - MIA SAYS I SHOULD PICK UP A BOOK - (STOP) -

LOVE FROM JACKSON - (STOP) -

- intra bunker telegram

the below collective pins

"But as with everything in this century,
even salvation has a class divide.
Already, two very different versions of bunker life are taking shape."

- the evergreen journal, april 21st, 2031

the evergreen journal, newsprint

"Most importantly, we hope that you have found some form of connectedness or hope in these articles. It is a scary time for everyone, but maybe having a little bit more information about what is going on helps lessen that fear."

- the evergreen journal, april 21st, 2021

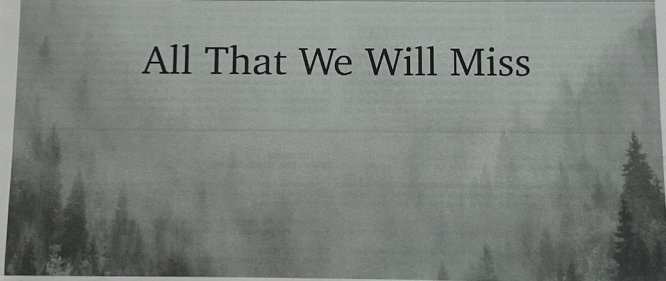

The Evergreen Journal

April 22, 2021

Vol. 140, No. 561

www.evergreenjournal.com

All That We Will Miss

the evergreen journal, newsprint

"So talk to each other. Publish local community newsletters if you can. Go to community meetings. Lodge complaints when it is necessary. Send telegrams to your loved ones in other bunkers. And in a year, we will be back to join you."

- the evergreen journal, april 22nd, 2031

plant identification cards, risograph

"I think what I miss most about being ground is the smell of the trees. You get so used to the sappy scent when you live around them all the time, but after a year of recycled air I crave something real."

- journal of k.d., april 21st, 2032 @ 5:32am

universal bunker guidebook

"On April 23, 2031, the human population will move underground in an attempt to give the Earth a year to heal. With resource extraction and emissions low, the biosphere is able to take a moment to reset. While both individual and collective private bunkers are allowed, this guidebook is for individuals staying in publicly funded community bunkers. Within, guidelines for community organization, activities, and communication are laid out. At the end of the booklet, instructions for re-entry on April 23, 2032, are also included."

- the universal bunker guidebook

the below collective banner, cotton yarns

As it was above, it will not be below.

- the below collective

eastern pine knit, bamboo yarns

The Eastern White Pine is not as tall as it's neighbors to the West, but is nonetheless majestic. Their branches grow outwards, thick with needles.

- plant identification deck

tulip tree knit, bamboo yarns

The trunk of the Tulip Tree can be hallowed out to create a canoe. Nowadays, the wood is often used for cabinets and furniture.

- plant identification deck

torrey pine knit, bamboo yarns

They twist and turn as the wind shapes them. Twisted statues made by nature's breath. Small and rare but incredibly strong.

- plant identification deck

