

Gabriele Nasole (b. 1997) is an artist, designer and freediver based in the Netherlands. His practice explores the entanglements between human society and oceanic space, with a particular focus on sensorial experiences and more-than-human perspectives. Drawing from research in maritime history, submerged narratives and critical oceanography his work aims to transcend the land-sea binary, favouring an understanding of the ocean as a system which extends beyond the waterline, into physical and mental realms.
