

Natalia Zaitseva (b. 1983) is a writer and time-based media artist.

Natalia was born in Kirovsk, a town beyond the Arctic Circle in Russia. She studied history at the Petrozavodsk State University in Karelia and media art at the Academy of Fine Arts Leipzig. She worked as a journalist until her early 30s, and then gradually began another career in the arts.

Natalia Zaitseva's interests include personal narratives, autofiction literature, and fringe dramaturgy.

Her theater plays have been staged at the Meyerhold Center in Moscow and other theatres. Her debut novel "Mortgage of Suffering" was published by "No Kidding Press", a young Kazan-based publishing house known for introducing significant European and American autofiction writers to Russian readers.

Since 2022, Zaitseva has been working as an artist in exile in Leipzig. In 2023, her performative essay Die Autorin premiered at the Schaubühne Lindenfels (Leipzig). Her video work Interview with the Pistol is on loan and presented in the permanent exhibition of Dresden State Art Collections (SKD). In November 2025, her participatory play Christabel premiered at the Schaubühne Lindenfels theatre, continuing her exploration of the transition between documentary and fiction.
