Assigned Name:
Danny Whitmore Antlers

Coordinates:
45.077038, -64.511970

Danny John Whitmore is a resident of Kentville, Nova Scotia, Canada. Born February 15, 1995, Danny's shadow includes antlers each Thursday. Danny Whitmore does not have antlers on Thursdays, or any day for that matter. Born to Ivan Whitmore and Jill Whitmore (formerly Beasley), they discovered the antler shadow on April 2, 1998 while visiting Kentville Memorial Park.

Ivan and Jill were confused when the shadow looked normal the next day and then noticed the antlers return on April 9th. They saw the antlers again on April 16th and told their friends about it. One of the friends was Agent Selene Webster who reported it to the GAUP on April 18. Agent Robert Mendellson was sent to Kentville, Nova Scotia the following week to talk with the following individuals:

Ivan Whitmore
Jill Beasley Whitmore
Angela Hansen Rosenberg
Stephanie Wright Hamilton
Charles Eaves
Jenny Beasley Eaves

These individuals have agreed to keep quiet about Danny's antler shadow. Danny can wear a hat on Thursdays and his shadow does not appear to have antlers. Danny has agreed to wear a hat each Thursday to avoid public knowledge on the matter. We have not seen any other child or adult with this feature and have no scientific explanation.

Ivan and Jill still live at 21 Academy St, Kentville. Danny attends York University in Toronto, studying Finance.

Moving Mountain

Coordinates:
62.967222, -150.898611

Mount Huntington is a striking rock and ice mountain in the central Alaska Range, about 8 miles south-southeast of Denali. It is also about 6 miles east of Mount Hunter, and two miles west of The Rooster Comb. First climbed in 1964, it is now a popular peak for technical climbers. Mount Huntington was the inspiration for the Paramount Pictures logo.

On July 7, 2018. The mountain sprouted legs and ran around the mountain range for approximately 10 minutes and returned to its original location. Only one climber was physically on the mountain at the time of movement and was somehow able to hold on to some rocks with his climbing gear. Witnesses to the event in 2018 included Tom Randalf (the climber), Annie Nevels, Cornelius Baxter, Skip Morissette (no relation to Alanis. . .we asked), and Larry Sanders. Larry Sanders did not survive the event, as he was squished by the running mountain. The living witnesses were brought to US headquarters and interviewed by Agent Ulisses Rivera. They cannot remember the event anymore with permission from GAUP Agent Y.

Annie had a video of the event that has been uploaded to the digital file on this case and was deleted from her phone.

Since the 2018 event, there have been more earthquakes at this location than previously recorded, but the mountain has stayed in the same location.

NMH Gravity Anomaly

Coordinates:
41.894722, -87.621944

Northwestern Memorial Hospital (NMH) is a nationally ranked academic medical center located in the Streeterville neighborhood of Chicago, Illinois. It is the flagship campus for Northwestern Medicine and the primary teaching hospital for the Feinberg School of Medicine at Northwestern University.

While many feared a worldwide computer error as the year 2000 approached, Northwestern Memorial Hospital staff started noticing strange vibrating noises in December 1999 on the 9th floor. Fig. 4 illustrates what happened on January 1, 2000. Dr Eloise Cunningham walked out of the elevator on the 9th floor and quickly fell upward. The gravity on this floor had been reversed. She screamed for help and Dr Mario Abarca came to that floor, but was not affected by the gravity shift. He grabbed more doctors and nurses from other floors and they quickly discovered that the gravity anomaly only affected the women.

NMH called the local authorities who called GAUP. Agent Lucy Underwood and Agent Jeffrey Pembroke were sent to investigate. After a thorough search of the floor, nothing was out of the ordinary besides the gravity shift. NMH has been deemed safe to operate and has agreed to use the 9th floor as storage only. Women are not permitted on the floor. The gravity anomaly does not affect the elevator, even when the doors are opened onto floor 9. Female staff members and patients may ride on the elevator past this floor with no ill effect.

All of NMH staff has agreed to sign NDAs except for Marie Cox. With permission from Agent Y, she cannot remember the last week of 1999 and the first few days of 2000. Marie Cox has been relocated to Thorek Memorial Hospital.

Genie

On September 23, 2010, Julius Hughes found a decorative bottle that resembled the lamp from Disney's Aladdin in the Great Moorleaze Farm Bed & Breakfast in Swindon, UK. Jokingly, he rubbed the lamp and a genie appeared. According to Julis, the conversation went like this:

Genie: Hello! I'm a genie, but I can only grant food related requests.

Julius: Can you give me a pomegranate?

Genie: Don't you think that's a little boring? I can do something more exciting than that.

Julius: Well. . . what if it's a really big pomegranate?

Genie: I like that. How big are you thinking?

Julius: 10 feet tall.

Genie: Okay, I'm going to do you a favor and make that pomegranate appear outside so you don't have to worry about it being stuck in here.

The genie then made a pomegranate appear that had a diameter of 10 feet. It appeared in the field just north of the bed and breakfast. Understandably, the pomegranate drew a lot of attention. The Great Moorleaze Farm host called the local authorities who called GAUP not knowing what to do. Agent Elias Jackson was flown out from our European headquarters and claimed that the fruit was stolen from his local farm. This worked despite pomegranates not being a locally grown food. Elias was able to remove the pomegranate from the location; he also removed the lamp. The lamp is now at the European GAUP headquarters and is only used to get food for work parties.

San Diego Washing Machine

Coordinates:
32.738914, -117.152024

As of 2017, an LG washing machine continues to appear in the elephant pen (Elephant Odyssey) at the San Diego Zoo, California, United States. San Diego Zoo reported the washer to the local police as protocol on April 6, 2017. It was promptly removed that afternoon. The elephants showed no interest in the washing machine and did not touch it at all. Zoo-goers showed confusion.

The machine showed up again on June 12 and the authorities were called again to remove it. After watching cameras again, nobody could be seen bringing the washing machine into the zoo. The machine again appeared on October 11, 2017. The authorities then reported this to the GAUP. Agent Selene Webster removed the washing machine and took it to United States headquarters. The washing machine is still in storage and shows no abnormalities to a regular LG washer.

Exact copies of the previous washers have appeared on the following days: December 24, 2017; April 2, 2018; August 23, 2018; Nov 7, 2018; March 13, 2019; and May 10, 2019. The San Diego Zoo has decided to leave the washer there and the elephants hardly interact with it. Signs on the edge of the pen state that the washing machine is a toy for the elephants to learn from. Leaving the May 10th washer in the pen has resulted in no new washers appearing.

Afro Church

Coordinates:

Afro Church is the nickname given to the Obediah Trail Baptist Church that was built in Ware County, Georgia. Just south of Waycross city, this church was built in 2018 by Moses Bailey who is also the current pastor at the location.

In July of 2019, locals started reporting that they couldn't enter the church building. Pastor Moses Bailey was the only one who could enter the building. One day he went to the building to try and do some research and he forgot his afro wig (he's bald) and couldn't enter. The next time he visited, he was wearing his wig again and was able to enter the church. Visitors to the church must enter wearing an afro wig or else their body is mysteriously teleported 8 feet away from the entrance. Real afros don't allow a visitor to enter, just an afro wig.

The GAUP was made aware of this phenomenon by a video uploaded to Instagram by Penny Hunsaker on July 26th. No agents have been sent to the location as we don't want to get involved in any religious practices.

Bermuda Triangle Siren

Coordinates:
19.136688, -66.847605

The Bermuda Triangle Siren is a large blue creature that lives in the ocean north of Puerto Rico. The coordinates listed above are an average of all known sightings. The siren has many fins and the face of a woman. The GAUP has been aware of the siren since the foundation of The GAUP in 1960. There are stories that could be siren related as early as 1500 when a Spanish ship arrived on the shores of Puerto Rico with no humans on board. It was recorded that more furniture was aboard the ship than would normally be there.

It was later discovered that the song of the siren would turn the listener into a chair. This phenomenon only occurs when on a boat. Some have heard the siren's song from the shore and did not turn into a chair.

Sailors who must sail north of Puerto Rico wear earplugs to avoid turning into chairs. GAUP Agents were sent to kill the siren in 1988 and 2004. Both missions were unsuccessful as neither team came across the siren. It is assumed the siren has died, but we do not know the lifespan of a siren. Reported sightings have slowed, but it's hard to know if the sightings can be trusted as the siren resembles many sea creatures that are native to the area.

Campfire Pond

Coordinates:
53.135655, -2.718847

Campfire pond is the local name for a small pond that appears only at night just south of the River Gowy and the Shropshire Union Canal Main Line in Beeston, Cheshire, England. Beeston Castle was built in the 1220s and there are written records as early as the 1400s that state people in the castle could see a glowing fire in the distance each night.

Each night, a small campfire burns next to a small pond. When locals tried swimming in the pond, they were sucked to the bottom of the pond. After being covered by the water, a person swimming in the pond would find themselves falling from the sky right above the pond. After landing in the pond, if said person does not swim to the edge within 20 seconds (it's easy to do so), they will be sucked to the bottom again and fall from the sky once more. Teenagers in the area enjoyed this activity until 1961 when Agent Clark Thomson was assigned to burn out the campfire each night. If the fire is out, the pond disappears and will not appear until the next night.

Agent Clark Thomson retired in 2001. Agent Winston Cohen continues this job in the summer months and Agent Raquel Sandoval burns it out in the winter.

Bigfoot

Coordinates:
46.205442, -118.999405

Cory is a large, hairy, man-like creature that currently resides in Burbank, Washington, United States. In a friendly 2008 interview, Cory answered lots of questions for the GAUP. Cory does not know his parents or if he has any. His earliest memory is running through the town of Walla Walla, Washington and being chased by 3 young boys. Cory does not know how old he is, but he thinks he is bigger than he was when being chased. He estimates that memory is from 1994.

Residents of Walla Walla and the Tri-Cities to the west are particularly interested in Bigfoot sightings and even hold Bigfoot Conferences regularly. Residents of Burbank (just east of the Tri-Cities) have come together to give Cory a supportive community. Members of the community will be removed from the town if they are found to be divulging the secret of Cory to anyone outside of Burbank. Cory has been employed at the Burbank Library since 2005 and is a friend to the families in the area. Cory is exempt from any taxes with permission from the United States government. He receives all payment in cash. Although Cory was offered housing by multiple Burbank residents, he usually sleeps somewhere in the McNary National Wildlife Refuge, just south of the library.

Because Cory is not harming anyone and the community seems to have no issue with him, the GAUP has agreed to let him live in Burbank unless he causes any trouble. Every 5 years, an agent will be sent to Burbank to reassess the situation and interview random citizens of Burbank to get their viewpoint on the matter. Thus far, everyone loves Cory and would feel betrayed if he was removed from the town.

The GAUP has only been aware of Cory since 2007 as it was still believed that all Bigfoot sightings before this were false.

The Tamme-Lauri oak is a large common oak. It is the thickest and oldest tree in Estonia and is located in Antsla Parish, Võru County. The tree is 56 feet tall and 327 inches in circumference at the widest part of the trunk. It's estimated that the tree was planted in 1326.

It was once thought that a fire spirit lived inside of this tree, named Laurits. Because of its size and age, the oak tree has been hit by lightning multiple times yet still lives. The center is now filled with cement as it was discovered the tree was hollowed by fire.

Estonian biologist, Mia Ojamaa was studying the tree in April 2017 and discovered an aspen leaf on one of the branches. Since then, leaves have been found from other species including many that are not indigenous to Estonia. In total there are 9 types of leaves on the tree:

Quercus rober - Common Oak
Populus tremuloides - American Quaking Aspen
Monstera deliciosa - Split-Leaf Philodendron (Swiss Cheese Plant)
Ginkgo biloba - Ginkgo Tree

The Rubber Duck Murders

Coordinates:
38.537527, -123.009177

The Rubber Duck Murders are a series of murders that started in 2020 in California. The first known murder was on March 15th, 2020 in Armstrong Redwoods State Natural Preserve. Aaron Wilson of Nevada was found dead in the forest with a massive head wound. About 10 feet away from his body was a rubber duck.

Within the next two days, murder scenes in Sacramento and Roseville also included a small rubber duck, leading the authorities to believe there was a serial killer who left ducks behind. On March 20th, four California murders occurred in the following cities: Hayfork, Los Angeles, Fresno, and Coachella. These locations are too far apart for it to have been one killer. The authorities concluded that it was a group of killers.

Ducks continued to appear all over the state near murder scenes. It felt like every murder had a rubber duck. The local authorities did everything they could to keep this information from the public to avoid mass panic or copy-cat killers.

On May 3, 2020 a stabbing in the Midway Towne Center, San Diego was caught on camera and a rubber duck appeared out of nowhere. Local authorities contacted the GAUP suspecting something supernatural.

With permission from Agent Z, an experiment was held at [REDACTED], California. Agent [REDACTED] volunteered [REDACTED] [REDACTED]. It has been confirmed that any murder in California will result in a rubber duck appearing.

A significant decrease in ducks appearing, leads us to believe that they do not appear at murder scenes anymore.

The Pop Punk Yucca is a Yucca plant in Snow Canyon Campground, St George, Utah. The plant grows quickly when pop punk music is played near it. When exposed to pop punk, this specific Yucca plant grows 8 inches per minute.

Bradley Green and Sasha Green (formerly Reece) visited Snow Canyon on their honeymoon. They arrived at the park on September 13, 2016 and started playing a playlist with many genres. They noticed when a Fall Out Boy song was playing, the Yucca next to their tent grew very quickly. They asked a park ranger about it the next day. The park ranger was Agent Lindsay Gail.

Because the likelihood of more people listening to pop punk at the camp site is unlikely and a quickly growing plant is not necessarily dangerous, The GAUP has not taken any action.
