

How do you take your tea?

Menaha Kandasamy on the crisis facing Sri Lanka's tea plantation workers

Sri Lanka's tea industry – the second-biggest source of tea imports to Australia – is at a turning point.

Plantation workers already work to unfair quotas in unsafe conditions. Now, they face a shift from permanent, full-time employment to casualisation – losing income, benefits, leave, job security and the right to unionise.

To help stave off starvation, children routinely work instead of attending school in plots with no toilets or drinking water. Yet in Australian supermarkets, we only pay about 8 cents per tea bag. Can't we do better than this?

On Saturday 19 July at Balam Balam Place, join Ceylon Workers' Red Flag Union leader Menaha Kandasamy to learn about this labour and human rights struggle – and find out how you can support workers' struggle for a better life.

Balam Balam Place is a wheelchair accessible venue. Masks encouraged.

Free entry. All community welcome.

3–5pm, Saturday 19 July 2025

Balam Balam Place
15 Phoenix St, Brunswick VIC

More information, and bookings:
tinyurl.com/support-tea-workers

How do you take your tea?

Menaha Kandasamy on the crisis facing Sri Lanka's tea plantation workers

Sri Lanka's tea industry – the second-biggest source of tea imports to Australia – is at a turning point.

Plantation workers already work to unfair quotas in unsafe conditions. Now, they face a shift from permanent, full-time employment to casualisation – losing income, benefits, leave, job security and the right to unionise.

To help stave off starvation, children routinely work instead of attending school in plots with no toilets or drinking water. Yet in Australian supermarkets, we only pay about 8 cents per tea bag. Can't we do better than this?

On Saturday 19 July at Balam Balam Place, join Ceylon Workers' Red Flag Union leader Menaha Kandasamy to learn about this labour and human rights struggle – and find out how you can support workers' struggle for a better life.

Balam Balam Place is a wheelchair accessible venue. Masks encouraged.

Free entry. All community welcome.

3–5pm, Saturday 19 July 2025

Balam Balam Place
15 Phoenix St, Brunswick VIC

More information, and bookings:
tinyurl.com/support-tea-workers