

JOSHUA VENTURINO
selected works 2023 – 2026

Impressions of autofictional memories set in nature are at the core of my art practice. Fields of vibrant colours, soft shapes, and aggressive pencil marks create dynamic, semi-abstracted landscape paintings and drawings. Poems, such as those of distant memories or places close to my heart, form a collection of texts that acts as an archive to be revisited and created from.

A natural wall surrounds us
A cocoon made of rocks

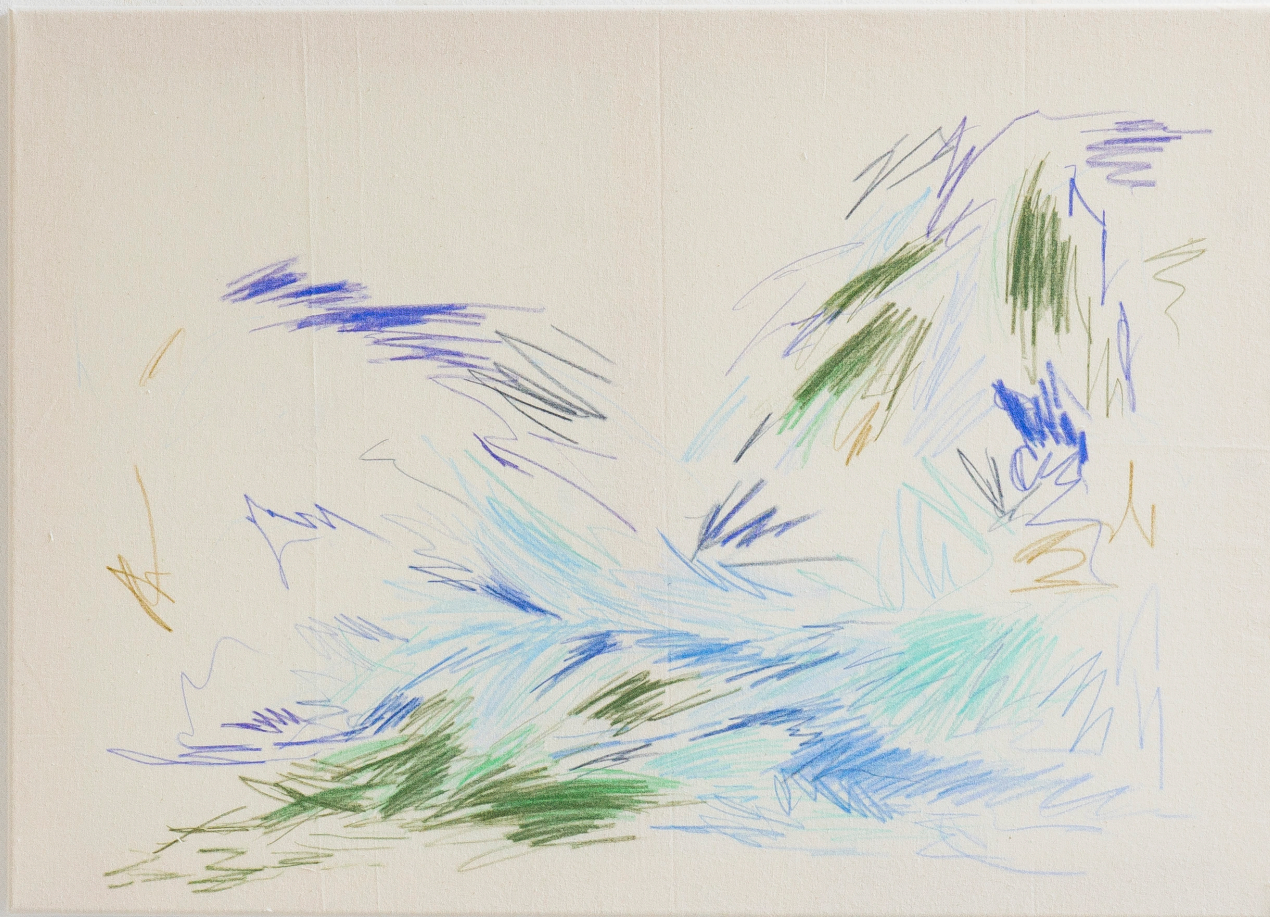

Warm, safe, isolated

I pierce these sky touching walls from north to south (back and forth) from south to north (back and forth)
to travel to search
to see to collect roots (fragmented)

from my mother's land
 neon
 green
 grass

from my father's land
 dry
 yellow
 grass

Once I leave
I'll glue on my skin
every piece I found

Digging into water, 2023
Colored pencil on raw canvas
50 × 70 cm

Beep...beep...beeeeeeep!
Someone's in the street and I'm still under my sheets.

A dirty white truck passes by,
waking me up, ugh, every time!

A muffled voice through a megaphone screams about products in a loud annoying tone.

Blankets
Towels
Duvets

A moving market beneath your house, an unnoticed wake-up call
to start the day,
whether you want it or not.

Boiling ground, 2023
Acrylic and oil on canvas
50 × 70 cm
