

DESIGN FUTURES

RA-
CIAL
JUS-TICE

SO-CIAL
EQ-
UITY

DE-SIGN

Design Futures is a 5-day convening to reimagine the role of the designer in addressing and dismantling systems of oppression in the built environment.

Community-Based Design Convening

Tulane University
New Orleans, Louisiana
June 2nd - 6th, 2025

In this time, over 60 student leaders from across the nation representing 13 universities convene with faculty and leading practitioners in the field of community-based design and design justice to learn practical skills, advance the field, and build community.

How to join Design Futures 2025:

Email DesignFuturesForum@gmail.com to confirm your attendance and reserve your spot.

We can provide you with additional materials to help recruit the faculty and students.

"I am forever grateful for the opportunity to have been immersed in an incredible community of individuals who are all passionate about working towards a future of equity."

COURTNEY KLEE (2019)
UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

FACULTY PLUS MEMBERSHIP

2025 Forum: Faculty Plus Membership

This membership is exclusive to universities that have been members of the Forum before. It entitles the participating university to the following membership benefits over the course of the year beginning at the start of the Design Futures academic year, whether or not participants take advantage of them. We cannot provide refunds and encourage you to fully use the benefits.

- Participate as members of the Design Futures University Consortium, including publicly identify the university as a member of the consortium
- Participation throughout the year in 3-4 exclusive virtual Faculty+ convenings and trainings with other Faculty+ university members.
- Resource library and shared resources from universities
- Access to members of the Design Futures Faculty+ consortium
- First chance to register to attend the virtual Winter faculty convening, 2 faculty registration fees is included (additional faculty can attend at registration rate)
- Send two faculty members and up to five students to the student symposium in June hosted by Tulane University.
 - Includes entry to the Forum for faculty and students, on-campus housing for the students and all food except dinners.
 - Travel and other expenses are not included.
- Ability to host Design Futures; to be a host university, a university must have been a consortium member and attended the symposium for at least two years in a row prior to committing to hosting

Early Bird Fee: $8,400, due by 12/31/24

Standard Fee: $8,800

Add on: +1 student to cohort: $1,100/student, up to 2 additional students.

In 2024, 72% of student attendees were people of color and 65% were women or non-binary.

100% of the design workshops were led by people of color and 100% co-led by women.

Impact on students

Breaking isolation and finding other people who are dedicated to spatial justice

Bringing rigor: Learning and practicing frameworks, tools and mindsets

Expanding their understanding of what career pathways are possible by meeting people who are practicing community-based design in the field

Receiving mentorship from award-winning practitioners and building peer-mentorship circles

Impact on faculty

Joining a network of peers to share curricula, student engagement approaches, and systems change strategies for their university

Renewing energy for their work in receiving validation for efforts that aren't always recognized within their university

Impact on the field

Building relationships between aligned practitioners across the country

Lifting up the existing BIPOC leadership in community-based design

Creating space for practitioners to share their work and be accountable to responsible practices

Providing an opportunity for practitioners to try more radical frameworks than what they can typically explore in the field