OCTOBER

SESSIONS

DARE COUNTY, NC

October 6th, 2023. A Sub-Tropical storm forms in the Caribbean and marches it's way North along the East Coast. Swells of up to 8.4 feet are thrown at the coastline. Surfers, Jesse Colitti and Lucca Jay decided the Outer Banks of North Carolina would receive the bulk of the swell at it's most raw and powerful form.

Upon arrival to Dare County, the energy in the water could be felt from ashore as the sun took its final gleam upon the sea before it would recede over the dunes. The following morning, the Outer Banks shows it's teeth as the winds switched from a heavy onshore to a light offshore. As the day goes on, the winds switch again bringing a choppy, unruly feeling to the ocean. Surfer, Jesse Colitti's brand new Channel Islands surfboard has been claimed by the great drink, on the final session of the day. Classic Outer banks farewell.

WRIGHTSVILLE AND CAROLINA BEACH, NC

Living and surfing in the Myrtle beach area gets tiring, so tiring that sometimes the only way to get a solid line is to head up to the Wilmington area. Photos above are few of hundreds of pictures taken up there this October. Below are surfers Chipper Ford, River Reifsnider, and Lucca Jay charging some 4 footers.

Beaches like Wrightsville and Carolina Beach consist mostly of what would be called a “Beach Break”. The picture on the left was taken at a very well known Wrightsville Break known as South End. This break is known to have A Frame waves on most conditions. The photos to the right are taken in Carolina Beach, North End. Which is known for its long and hollow rights that peel off the north end of the pier.
