'I Can't Hear You'
Marley Alvarez

"I Can't Hear You" is both an exhibition and a collection of works inspired by the past year—moments spent surfing, swimming, and watching sunsets with good company, or simply being immersed in the quiet landscapes of Northern New South Wales. The title invites personal interpretation, yet for Marley, it reflects the paradox of our hyper-connected world, where constant digital noise can leave us feeling disconnected. In these works, she explores the solace found in stepping away—into the hills, where the reception fades, and silence offers a grounding reminder of what it means to be present.
