

The heat from the closeness of me tilting towards the sun
Was stoing up to ignite at night and light
The coldness of the cave
The billowy flames lit up my face
And thinning smoke hung in the branches waiting for wind
My front was warm, cold backs of my arms Never felt the dawn, the night was long from I felt my size by Phil Elverum